DETAILED ACTION

1. The enclosed detailed action is in response to the After-Final submitted on August 26, 2005.

Claim Objections

2. Claims 7, 14 and 21 are objected to because of the following informalities:
Claims 6-7, lines 3 and 1 respectively; claims 13-14, lines 3-4 and 1 respectively, and claims 20-21, lines 3-4 and 1-2 respectively should state "said plurality of extend-to-new volume groups".
Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claims 5, 12 and 19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Niles et al. (PGPUB: US 2003/0135709).

Regarding claims 5, 12 and 19, Niles discloses selecting a new storage volume (by selecting a segment from volume B or C in the first storage group from the free list) from a first plurality of storage volumes that constitute a first storage group (first group comprised of volumes A, B and C in Figure 4, Reference 225) in response to encountering an end of a current storage volume

Art Unit: 2187

(section 0085, lines 29-41 and section 0086); and if unsuccessful in selecting a new storage from the first storage group (unsuccessful when the end of an allocated disk area on a current drive has been reached; refer to section 0041), selecting another new storage volume from a second plurality of storage volumes that constitute a second storage group (storage volumes located on another physical drive, refer to section 0041); and linking the second group as an extend-to-new (expansion) volume group for end of volume encounters of the first plurality of storage volumes of the first group (section 0041, section 0038, lines 6-14, section 0047, lines 7-20). Regarding claim 19, Niles discloses a software driver (computer program) performing the above features (section 0069).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 6-7, 13-14 and 20-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Niles (PGPUB: US 2003/0135709).

Regarding claims 6, 13 and 20, Niles discloses the limitations cited above, however, Niles does not explicitly disclose a plurality of expansion volume storage groups. Niles discloses that physical storage can be added to the system when an actual memory capacity increase is required [section 0047] and thus it is evident that more than one physical drive (and thus more than one volume group) can be added to the system to further increase the memory capacity, thereby providing a plurality of expansion volume storage groups. Niles discloses that the new drives are divided into segments per volume (Figure 4, Reference 225; section 0038) and linked to the other drives (section 0047), thus establishing a group of volumes for the newly added drive. Hence, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to add a plurality of drives (expansion volumes) to the system taught by Niles for the desirable purpose of increasing the (actual) memory capacity. Additionally, Niles' system is capable of selecting a new storage volume from one or more of the plurality of extend-to-new storage volume groups by selecting a corresponding segment from the extend-to-new storage volume group from the free list.

Regarding claims 7, 14 and 21, Niles discloses that the plurality of extend-to-new volume groups are available for selection according to a priority (next available; refer to section 0044 and section 0046).

Response to Arguments

7. Upon reconsideration of the claims after an updated search was performed, the above claims, although indicated as allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims in the last Office Action, have not been allowed because the claims are anticipated by the aforementioned prior art. The current Office Action has accordingly been made a Non-Final Rejection.
